Jo's Notebook

My Friend, Jim Lewis

One of the truly great, and most unforgettable characters of my lifetime passed away last Saturday at Haws Memorial Hospital.

Quiet, beloved and gentle J. O. Lewis died at the age of 85, leaving behind him not only a host of friends and relatives to mourn him, but countless numbers of people who will always credit him with the good things of life they learned as a result of having known him.

I am one of them. And there are few people today, other than my family, who really know what this fine and courtly gentleman meant to me, and to the world in which he lived.

You see, about 16 years ago when we bought Radio Station WFUL, Mr. Lewis was the manager of the station. He had assumed the fearful task of holding together a financially distraught operation, and the seemingly hopeless task of keeping the station on the air. We urged him to stay with us. Thankfully, he did.

Most of the time I called him Mr. Lewis, not so much because he was older than I, but because I couldn't get around to being on a first name basis with a man whose quiet appearance exuded respect and dignity. But as I came to know him ever so well, I started calling him "Jim," and he seemed to be so pleased that I did.

And it was this Jim Lewis who, past the age of retirement, came into my cubby-hole of an office every day, always at my invitation, to talk over the problems of the day and the mounting policy decisions that had to be made in a business at which I was not so experienced, as I felt I was, in the newspaper business.

Sometimes I know I asked too much of him, but if I did, only Jim Lewis knew about it. He was so understanding, so honest, so forthright in his judgment. There were times when I cried on his shoulder, literally and figuratively, and it was at these times that his greatness showed through.

If I was wrong, he told me so in a manner that only a man of exemplary character and integrity could do. And when he felt that I was right, he would not defy his friends to protect me, for that was not his nature, but he would convince his friends of the logic of my decision.

It was no real effort for Jim Lewis to be protective and loyal to all of his friends, because people had faith in this man, and this man returned that confidence in good measure.

Mr. Lewis had already lived a full and wholesome life as an educator, a civic and cultural leader, and a businessman before he became associated with WFUL. It was my great fortune to benefit from all the experience he possessed, and moreover from all of the friends he had in all walks of life.

The most unforgettable memory I have of Mr. Lewis is of the time he became quite ill while he was associated with WFUL. Many of us feared for his recovery, but stout heart that he was he did recover, and of course we wanted him back at his valued position in the sales department.

He had to take his pace a little more slowly, and that's the way we wanted it. We appreciated him, and we loved him.

One day, after I had left the station I received a warm and wonderful letter from Mr. Lewis in which he said something that I shall never, never forget. It was a truly memorable statement.

Said he, expressing his gratitude for his association at the station with me and Paul, and the staff:

"In the sunset of my years I look back among the friends that I have made in my lifetime. I hope, before I leave this life, that I can find the way to give to others the wonderful friendship you have given to me."

Jim Lewis found that way long before he ever knew me, because he gave to me, and to all who knew him, the good and humble kind of love and friendship that will live longer than the youngest in our lives.

He was a good man. I loved him. In a world of people striving for riches, Jim Lewis left wealth of incalculable value, of assets of character that money cannot buy.

Festival Arts and Crafts Are A 'Must' to Visit

Along with the Latin American atmosphere of the International Banana Festival are a couple of displays that smack of a little closer-to-home air. A Tennessee Arts and Crafts program is being held at the Community Center during the Festival. It combines both sculpture and crafts and represents the best of Tennessee artists.

This distinguished exhibit is brought here by the Tennessee Art Guild, an organization that has given much help to the development of cultural improvements here and elsewhere.

Over 70 displays are housed in the center, yet all of them have a common theme: excellent workmanship and superb idea-material combinations. A number of the sculptures are of the abstract variety, but many are also done in the realistic style.

The crafts range from macramé wall designs to hand-crafted silver goblets and rings. Their display is designed to portray the importance of the crafts in Tennessee today, and is housed in the Carroll Reece Museum in East Tennessee State University in Johnson City, Tennessee, when not on the road.

Meanwhile, in the basement of the Fulton-South Fulton Library is an area art exhibit sponsored by the Fulton Woman's Club and the Fulton-South Fulton Art Guild.

It is a show of the works of artists from the Ken-Tenn area, and will offer prizes to the best in both professional and amateur fields. The exhibit is mainly paintings, although one room is devoted entirely to needlework designs.

Both displays are open to the public for free viewing during the duration of the Festival.

The Band traveled from Guatemala City, accompanied by Mr. Gabriel Cordovez of Miami, Florida and Guatemala, who is acting as interpreter and coordinator for the group.

Three Clubs Win Awards In Window Fair

Three homemaker clubs were selected as the winners in the Window Fair for the Banana Festival celebration.

Named to first place was the State Line Club displayed at Graham Furniture Store. Jollyette Homemakers were awarded second place merits with their exhibit in the window of the Budget Shop. Announced as the third place winner was the Crutchfield Homemakers' display in the Bay Family Shoe Store.

The following is the location of the other exhibits. They will remain in the windows until the Festival is completed.

Latin American Arts and Crafts at Roper Television. Tri-County Homemakers at K. Homra Store.

Pierce-Harris Community Club, National Store. Fulton Young Homemakers, Fulton Hardware and Furniture Store.

Rush Creek Homemakers, Fulton Electric System. Hickman Homemakers at Clarice Shop.

Palestine Homemakers, Nofel's Department Store. Phillips Homemakers at Dimeco Variety Store.

Central Homemakers at Warren Jewelry Store. Fulton Homemakers at Western Auto Store.

Western Homemakers at Rice Insurance Agency. Montgomery Homemakers at Kasnow Department Store.

Bennett Homemakers at Hudson Hardware Store. Crossroads Homemakers at Evans Drug Store.

Confusion, laughter and neighborliness abounded as 14 Amigos from Quito, Ecuador were matched with temporary "parents" at the International Banana Festival Headquarters Sunday night, August 8.

Each year students from the banana producing countries come to Fulton to help promote the Festival theme, Project Unite Us.

The union at the headquarters Sunday night was, in most cases, accompanied by smiles and kisses as the new families launched a two-week relationship that will probably evolve into lasting friendships.

Aside from the usual problems of new faces and a new country, is the fact that most of the Amigos speak very little

English, and most of the families with which they are staying speak only broken Spanish.

However, Eleni Buchell, a 19-year-old college student from Quito, said that most of the students understand "most of what is being said." Eleni speaks English fluently.

Mrs. Florence Ballesteros accompanied the group on their flight from South America to Louisville. The trip to Fulton included a stopover for a tour of Mammoth Cave.

The Amigos, who range in age from doce (12) to veinte-tres (23), and their "parents" are:

Salome Garcia with Mr. and Mrs. Jim Mullenburg; Eleni Buchell with Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hixson; Michele Ballesteros with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Sanders; Martha Jaramillo and Alicia Naranjo with Mrs. Joe McCoy;

Lucia Pazmino with Mrs. Jane Edwards; Patricia Vergara and Helena Vergara with Mr. and Mrs. Flynn Powell; Maria Saenz with Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Burnette; and Adrian

Cevallos with Mrs. Edna Ballesteros. Four Amigos, Ivan Villalba, Marcelo Carcelen, Fernando Calderon and Francisco Vacas will be guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Casparian for the first part of their visit and then with Mr. Jim Wilkinson. Mrs. Ballesteros is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ual Killebrew. Joe Sanders, local coordinator for the Amigos Program, said that participants in the program are chosen on the basis of applications they make to Mrs. Ballesteros in Quito. Participants on this end are determined "by interest."

In conversations with some of the South American guests, Louisville. The trip to Fulton words like "Wonderful" and "Great" keep cropping up to describe their stay. Activities so far include such things as shopping, swimming, and bowling. Mrs. Joe Sanders listed the above activities plus a party for her guest, Michele Ballesteros.

And, of course, the Banana Festival activities this weekend are at the top of the list for the Amigos. But, regardless of where the students go and what they do, the emphasis is on the word "Amigo," or friend, which is what the International Banana Festival is all about — stressing friendship with Latin American neighbors.

Doodle Town Pipers Ready For Swinging

Put twelve swinging singers on a stage. Add the music of four back-up musicians, Shake well and pour — and there they are! The Doodle Town Pipers have invaded banana country. Appearing Friday night at 8 p. m. for the first time in this area, the group promises to give their audience more than its money's worth.

They are coming direct from such big-name television shows as the Ed Sullivan and Dean Martin Shows, and recently completed a series of one-hour specials. "Here Come the Doodle Town Pipers."

According to the Las Vegas Sun Newspaper, the group has more than a little going for them. They sing, dance, clown a little, and guarantee to "entertain and appeal to all ages."

The group is composed of six girls and six boys who really make the words "young and beautiful" come alive. As one Banana Festival worker put it, "One look at them — even in a picture — and you know they've got something."

Tickets are on sale now at the Banana Festival Headquarters, but you'd better hurry. Word is they won't last much longer!

HOME ON LEAVE
Captain Duncan Bushart and a friend, Warrant Officer Bill Williams, are home on leave from Germany and are visiting with Bushart's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Glynn Bushart.

New Coaches, Staff On Duty At Fulton

The new coaching staff, consisting of Gwin Wood, Gene Sides, and Johnny Covington, has assumed duties at Fulton High School. Along with over 30 football squad members, they are already preparing for the upcoming season.

Gene Sides, head football coach, was born in Wetumpka, Alabama, where he graduated from high school in 1965. After attending Marion Institute in 1966, he went to UTM on a football scholarship in 1968-69 where he set a record with a 52-yard field goal.

Coach Sides, who has been assistant football coach at Milan High for the last two years, is married to the former Susan Hodges of Gleason, Tennessee. The Sides have a six-month-old son, Jason. They live on Walnut Street.

Assistant football coach Johnny Covington is a 1963 graduate of Fulton High. He attended the University of Tennessee at Knoxville for two years on a football scholarship and graduated from Kansas State College, Hays, Kansas, with a degree in physical education.

Mr. Covington is married to the former Vicki Kaiser of McPherson, Kansas, and they have one daughter, Amy, age two years. They reside on Fourth Street.

Head basketball coach Gwin Wood is also a native of Wetumpka, Alabama. He graduated from Wetumpka High School in 1964, attended Marion Institute from 1965-66, and transferred to Arkansas State University on a football scholarship where he graduated in 1969.

His wife is the former Lynn Higgins of Paragould, Arkansas. They have a son, Jeffrey, who is 10 months old.

The 1971 football schedule opens August 27 with a game at Heath. It is followed by a September 3 game at Lone Oak.

The first home game is scheduled for September 10 with Fulton County. The other home games are set for: October 8 with North Marshall; October 15 with Reidland; and the last game of the season, November 5 with Trigg County.

The other games on the schedule are: September 17 at Crittenden County; September 24 at Murray; October 1 at Obion County; and October 23 at Fort Campbell.

RETURN FROM KANSAS

POET'S CORNER

I KNOW SOMETHING GOOD ABOUT YOU

Wouldn't this old world be better
If the folks we meet would say—
"I know something good about you!"
And treat us just that way?

Wouldn't it be fine and dandy
If each handclasp, fond and true
Carried with it this assurance—
"I know something good about you!"

Wouldn't life be lots more happy
If the good that's in us all
Were the only thing about us
That folks bothered to recall?

Wouldn't life be lots more happy
If we praised the good we see?
For there's such a lot of goodness
In the worst of you and me!

Wouldn't it be nice to practice
That fine way of thinking too?
You know something good about me,
I know something good about you?

Reading enriches people's lives. It broadens the scope of one's thoughts and actions, and sharpens one's capabilities for functioning as a helpful, knowledgeable member of society. It gives an individual polish, the difference between rough coal and a diamond. In short, reading can make the difference between good and excellent living.

RIDE OUT THE DARK, by Christabel Bielenberg. From 1935 until the end of World War II, the author lived in Germany as a German citizen. When Hitler became dictator, she and her husband became closely associated with resistance circles there. Her accounts of the early years of her marriage, of the outbreak and progress of the war as seen from inside Germany, are of absorbing interest, giving us a view of the war as it were, "through the other end of the telescope."

MY OWN CAPE COD, by Gladys Taber. Here Gladys Taber opens the doors of her Cape Cod home and invites her readers to share part of her life. "Still Cove is exactly my idea of heaven." Nestled on a cliff overlooking the sapphire waters of Mill Pond Inlet, it is a low, one-story house with white cedar shingles weathered to a soft smoke gray. Looking beyond Still Cove, she reflects on the Cape itself. Here are the tides and the fogs, the cranberry bogs, the beaches where visitors swim and Cape Codders dig for clams.

MOON ROCKS, by Henry S. F. Cooper, Jr. With the amount of attention that has been paid to piloting and engineering aspects of the recent Apollo moon landing very little has been noted for the public of the scientific mission: the new knowledge and materials the astronauts brought back to Earth on their historic voyages. Through the observations and intelligence of a masterful reporter, in terms wholly comprehensible to the layman, we share in a moment of "unprecedented" scientific discovery.

JESSE STUART, by Ruel Foster. Jesse Stuart is a marvelously fecund writer, ignored by the serious literary critics, probably because his work lies outside the currently fashionable modes. Yet millions of readers have read enthusiastically his poetry, fiction and autobiography. This book is an attempt to describe and evaluate the totality of Stuart's work.

FISHERMAN'S BOUNTY, by Nick Lyons. This is a marvelous full and entertaining treasury of the finest writing about angling. Fresh and salt-water species, trout, salmon, marlin, striped bass, musky, tuna, pickerel, steelhead and even the lowly carp are treated in these engaging stories and articles written by new and old masters of angling literature.

THE WAR OF THE INNOCENTS, by Charles Bracelen Flood. Flood entered the Vietnam War not as a correspondent, but as an attached member of a dive-bomber unit which was dropping napalm in the single most unpopular activity for the war. He remained in Vietnam for a year, stationed far from Saigon. From his experiences emerges a portrait infused with the grace and force of an accomplished novelist.

THE LAST CRUSADE, by Chester Cooper. This book provides the first completely comprehensive account of the American intervention in Vietnam. It explains how America got involved in Vietnam and how that commitment escalated out of control. The Last Crusade is full of startling previously unpublished details about the United States' involvement in Vietnam, from the sabotaged Roosevelt plan for Indochina, to the true story behind the Tet offensive and the Cambodian intervention.

Concluding Series Of Paschall Family Spells 'Home'

I know three of Uncle Gid's daughters' best: Cousin Ad, the front ones. That's all they Cousin Nette, and Cousin Mat. can see, anyway."

They were true Paschalls. Martha helped Mammaw and were not known as "the more than she knew. For Mammaw Paschall girls" for no reason. maw told Martha's tooth-

When Cousin Nette died, brushing story to her guests Cousin Ad's minister came to while Martha was sampling see her. Cousin Ad told him ice cream to be served later, how she had lost her father. One hot summer afternoon her mother, her husband, her Joe Bennett was at my home, two children. And now Nette, He and Martha and I were her last sister.

When the minister told her to lean on the Lord, Cousin Ad replied, "I have broken with see who could swing highest the Lord." I expected the minister to get up and walk out of the room. Instead he held her hand and talked quietly and comfortably until Cousin Ad went to sleep.

A happy incident I enjoy remembering took place one summer morning when I was taken after a time, cat hairs that to call on the Paschall girls. They had a visitor, their sister Pizze from Louisiana. While we sat on the large front porch and drank lemonade, Cousin Pizze talked about her piazza and how pleasant it was to sit there and watch all the happenings around her home.

I had never heard the name Pizze before and I had never heard the word piazza. For weeks I had to concentrate to remember whether Cousin Pizze enjoyed sitting on her piazza or Cousin Pizze enjoyed sitting on her piazza.

Cousin Nette spent nights with us when Dad was away at court. She was there the night the Meadows Hotel burned. Even a mile away, as we were, it looked as if half Fulton were on fire.

Cousin Nette never married. I heard her say often that there was not a man alive that she could cook for. I thought that she could keep a man happy with her chocolate fudge. It was the best. The only thing wrong was that she cut it in such small squares.

Cousin Nette would read you a story while you washed your hair. Parts of the story I couldn't understand and she had to explain them to me.

She always said something about hitching up a star and something about my wagon. At least that was what I thought she said.

It was not until I was old enough to read Emerson's line "Hitch your wagon to a star" that I understood Cousin Nette's message.

Mammaw seldom had callers except members of the family, but one day some neighbors were coming to say Happy Birthday. Martha was there to "help Mammaw entertain the guests" — as Martha herself put it.

Shortly before time for the ladies to arrive, Mammaw said, "Martha, our guests will be here soon. Have you brushed your teeth?"

Mrs. Howard Adams, Fulton's newest golfer, covered herself with glory when she won a tight match from Mrs. Joe Treas Friday afternoon to win the 1951 Handicap trophy. The final match was a close one, but Mrs. Treas had "putter trouble" which cost a number of strokes, and Mrs. Adams came through in "champion style" to win the trophy the first year of her golfing.

The Fulton Fire Department was called out at 2:10 Wednesday afternoon to put out a fire in a jeep belonging to Jim Purcell of Crutchfield. The fire caught when the starter switch got stuck. Little damage was done.

FORTY-FIVE YEARS AGO AUGUST 20, 1926

Early Saturday morning, Jailer Tobe Jackson was disturbed from peaceful slumbers to find that seven prisoners entrusted to his care had escaped for parts unknown. Ringleader was believed to be one E. L. King, charged, among other things, with administering "knock-out" drops to editor Will Busby of the Hickman Courier ... and thereafter relieving him of his valuables.

Members of Fulton's First Baptist Church were happy this week to receive the announcement from their pastor, Rev. C. H. Warren, that beginning the first Sunday in September, services will be held in the newly-completed main auditorium of the church building.

A musical program at the Rotary Club this week included the following numbers: Miss Hattie May Godfrey, piano solo; Miss Mayme Bennett, flute solos; James Wallace Gordon and Goodwin Morris, saxophone and violin; Miss Gladys Bell, accompanist.

SOCIAL NOTES: Mrs. Boyd Bennett gave a party this week for Misses Mayme Bennett, Nell Owen and Louise Binford, who are soon returning to college ... Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Smith entertained for youthful friends of their daughters, Sara Catron and Martha with bridge and dancing at their home Thursday evening ... Misses Dorris Huddleston and LaVerne Browder are returning this week from special art and music courses at Chautauqua, New York.

SOCIETY - WOMAN'S INTEREST

Mrs. Leon Fields Is Named Leader Of Lung Drive Fund

Mrs. Leon Fields, Fulton, was named chairman of the campaign to fight children's lung diseases on August 6 by James E. Jackson, president of the Mid-South Chapter of the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation.

Mrs. Fields will lead local volunteers in raising funds during Children's Lung Disease Month. The campaign is scheduled for September with a house-to-house appeal for funds to support patient services, scientific research and education.

A recent upsurge of interest in genetic diseases has revealed the possibility of being able, in the future, to prevent or control genetic defects through laboratory and clinical methods. This, coupled with a federal appropriation of $10 million for a Genetic Task Force within the National Institutes of Health, adds impetus to this year's drive.

Cystic fibrosis thus far is an incurable disease, inherited when both parents have a biochemical defect. Many patients now are living beyond their teens and into adulthood because of improved therapy. That same kind of therapy is relieving and often curing children suffering from chronic bronchitis, asthma with lung damage, bronchiectasis, the condition sometimes called childhood emphysema and other respiratory afflictions.

"Most people don't realize how many children have serious breathing problems," said Mrs. Fields. "More than five million children cannot take breathing for granted, and the Foundation's basic research program, which seeks clues to the underlying cause of cystic fibrosis, is developing new knowledge that may benefit all of them."

Two Hundred Persons Honor K. M. Winston

A reception at the Park Terrace August 9 honored K. M. Winston, who recently resigned as principal of South Fulton Elementary School, and James Faulkner, newly elected principal of the school.

About 200 faculty members, retired teachers and friends called during the evening to wish the two honor guests well in their new jobs.

Gifts presented to Mr. Winston included a box of bubble gum and a coffee mug from his students, a pen and pencil set and an all-weather coat from his co-workers.

Guests were served from a table covered with a yellow linen cloth and centered with an arrangement of white and yellow roses. The table was accented with silver pieces from which cakes, nuts, and mints were served.

Hosts for the affair were: Mr. and Mrs. Harold Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Yates, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Neely, Mr. and Mrs. John Scherdt, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Blaylock.

Ellen Sanger Will Represent County At Fair

Ellen Sanger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sanger of Hickman, will represent Fulton County at the RECC Beauty Contest August 25 at the 1971 Kentucky State Fair.

Miss Sanger was selected July 29 from a field of six contestants in Hickman, Kentucky.

Runner-up was LaDonna Lawson, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. James E. Lawson, Water Valley. Should Miss Sanger be unable to attend the Fair Contest, Miss Lawson will compete.

Twenty-two Kentucky Rural Electric Cooperatives are sending their queens to the Beauty Contest. The winning girl will receive a $300 scholarship. The first runner-up will win a $200 scholarship, and the second runner-up, a $100 scholarship.

This is the twenty-second annual RECC Beauty Contest. The winner of the Kentucky contest will go to Las Vegas in February to compete for a $2,500 scholarship in the national RECC Beauty Contest.

Mr. and Mrs. Tate

Allyson Miller, Michael Tate Wed In Beautiful Ceremony

In an impressive candlelight ceremony solemnized at Trinity Episcopal Church Saturday afternoon August 7 at five o'clock, Miss Allyson Elizabeth Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney A. Miller, became the bride of Michael Tate, son of Mr. and Mrs. Riley Tate.

The Reverend James Wilkinson performed the double ring ceremony. The wedding vows were pledged before the altar which held matching brass altar vases of white gladioli and marguerite daisies. Lighted white tapers in the altar candelabra flanked the vases. Brass and crystal aisle candelabra, entwined with smilax and glowing with tall cathedral candles, completed the wedding scene.

As the wedding guests assembled, a program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Robert Cultra, Sr., organist, Union City, Tennessee, and Mrs. Hunter B. Whitesell, violinist. The organ numbers included "Panis Angelicus," "Andante" (Violin Concerto), Mendelssohn, "Bell-Soliloquy," Young, "Meditation (Thais)," Massenet, and "The Swan" — Saint-Saens. Mrs. Whitesell played "Romance" (Second Concerto) — Wieniawski. Mrs. Cultra played a Bach Chorale, "Das Neugeborene Kindlein" during the betrothal service. The traditional wedding marches of Wagner and Mendelssohn were used for the processional and recessional.

The petite bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an exquisite gown of white peau d'ange lace, combined with peau de soie. The high-rise bodice was entirely overlaid with the lace pattern, featuring a scoop neckline, etched in Venise lace. The Juliet-designed sleeves, also fashioned of lace, were accented at the cuffs with a narrow etching of Venise lace. The A-line skirt was designed of peau de soie, overlaid with Dior panels of lace flowing unattached from waistline to hem. A detachable chapel train of peau de soie was secured at the back waistline with an applique of Venise lace. Her headpiece was created especially for her gown, which was a full length mantilla of imported illusion, etched in a border of Venise lace. She carried a Bible overlaid with a white orchid.

Mrs. Hewitt Montgomery of Lexington, Kentucky, attended her sister as matron of honor and Miss Paige Miller, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. They wore formal gowns of aquamarine organzine and slipper satin. The natural waistline was defined with a wide midriff created of satin, featuring a self-laced peasant effect. A demurely scooped neckline was accented with a bias self-ruching and the long gossamer Bishop's sleeves had deep flounced ruffle cuffs. The easy dirndl skirt was created with a deep ankle ruffle of organzine. Each attendant wore a bandeau cluster of turquoise velvet blossoms with narrow streamers. They carried delicate nosegays of flowers which accented the colors of their costumes.

Miss Cindy Hewitt and Susan Lynn Miller, youngest sister of the bride, were the bridesmaids. They were attired identically to the honor attendants except for the color of their gowns, their being in Fiesta pink.

Mr. Tate served his son as best man, Rick Cardwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cardwell, cousin of the bride, was the ring bearer. Groomsman were Jamie Pawlukiewicz and Johnny Campbell. Ushers were Eddie Crocker, Milan, Tennessee, cousin of the bridegroom, and Tom Bushart, cousin of the bride. Scott Miller, the bride's brother, and Bradley Tate, brother of the bridegroom, served as acolytes.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Miller chose a formal gown of deep turquoise silk georgette over silk peau de soie. A V-neckline was featured with long, full sleeves, and easy graceful skirt with attached panels. She combined matching accessories and wore a white orchid.

Mrs. Tate, mother of the bridegroom, was attired in a formal gown of beige cluny lace and violet crepe. The bodice was fashioned of lace, featuring a boat neckline and elbow-length sleeves; the empire waistline was defined with a band of moss green satin. Her accessories were of blending hue and her corsage was of cymbidium orchids.

Immediately following the wedding a reception was held at the Fulton Country Club. There, an arrangement of Jade foliage decorated the mantel. The bride's table from which the guests were served was overlaid with a white taffeta cloth which held a large centerpiece of white gladioli, daisies and poms. On another table a three-tiered wedding cake, topped with fresh white roses entwined with wedding bells was flanked by white

Ann Landers

— Your Problems Bring Answers —

Dear Ann Landers: I am a San Francisco dentist who reads your column faithfully. Every day I am appalled by the ignorance and stupidity of parents. It occurred to me that the best way to educate people is to write to Ann Landers. Will you serve as the conveyor belt between thousands of dentists and millions of parents? Here are the basic guidelines:

1. Don't wait until your child has a toothache before you take him to the dentist. He will then associate the dentist with pain and establish an irreversible, life-long fear of dentistry.

2. Don't ignore cavities in baby teeth because "they fall out eventually" and don't matter. They DO matter, and should be well cared for to insure the proper alignment of second teeth.

3. Don't use scare words when you talk about the dentist. Expressions such as "needle" and "pull the tooth out" should be avoided. Tell the child the dentist will "put your tooth to sleep" and "wiggle it out."

4. Don't bribe your child to go to the dentist. This raises many questions and makes the child apprehensive.

5. Don't insist on going into the workroom with the child. He will do better if you let him know he is grown up enough to go in without you.

6. Don't permit your child to eat candy and other sweets all day long. Substitute raisins, dried prunes, apricots and fresh fruit. Sugarless gum is good, too.

7. Begin early to teach your child the importance of caring for his teeth and gums. Habits established early will stay with him the rest of his life. I am not looking for publicity, so I'll sign — No Signature

Dear No Sig: Thank you for taking your valuable time to write. The teeth you saved might be my grandchildren.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 14 years old (a girl) and I have a gripe rather than a problem. It's my father. Every morning I am supposed to bring him a cup of hot coffee the minute he opens his eyes and yells for it. I am also supposed to bring the newspaper and his glasses. I don't mind doing this, but he is not a person who has a lot of patience, especially in the morning. If he doesn't get his coffee and paper and glasses, he writes to me need a definite answer. More people suffer from the inability to MAKE a decision than from making the same place two nights in a row. I never know where to look. Sometimes I look in eight places before I find them. This morning they were in the medicine cabinet. I figured it out when I found the toothpaste on the telephone table.

When I ask Dad to give me a clue as to where to look he says, "There are none so blind as those who WILL NOT see!" I hate this cliché. How can I cure him?—Chewed Over Cabbage

Dear Cabbage: No way. Just don't ask him for any clues and he won't get the chance to chew his cabbage so many times. Some people set themselves up for aggravation.

Dear Ann Landers: It shocks me the way you hand out life and death advice — right off the top of your head. Don't you realize some people live by what you say? How do you know you're always right?—No Mavin

Dear N. M.: Nobody is right all the time, and I DO make mistakes. But the advice you describe as "off the top of my head" sometimes represents hours of research. People who write to me need a definite answer. More people suffer from the inability to MAKE a decision than from making the

Oratory, Barbecue Features Of Picnic

A large and enthusiastic audience, seated under the famed oak trees on the lawn of old St. Jerome School, got an earful today as Kentucky's four gubernatorial hopefuls and a host of lesser candidates spoke at the 91st annual Fancy Farm picnic.

Campaign oratory, barbecued pork and mutton, clear skies, and temperatures in the high 80's combined to make the gathering one of the most delightful in recent years.

A.B. (Happy) Chandler, twice governor, former U.S. senator and baseball commissioner, led off the parade of gubernatorial speakers. Chandler is running on the Independent ticket or, as he prefers, the Commonwealth ticket. Chandler was followed to the rostrum by William Smith, American party candidate; Wendell Ford, Democrat, and Tom Emberton, Republican.

The gubernatorial campaign apparently swelled the crowd to one of the largest in the past 15 years, and reminded many of the picnics held years ago on the eve of primary elections.

Chandler, an old favorite in Graves County and particularly Fancy Farm, told the crowd he was speaking at the picnic before two of his opponents were born and while the other was a little boy at his mother's knee.

"It's expensive to train a governor in office, and I already know how to be governor," Chandler said.

Chandler, who is a spry 73, scoffed at the idea of his being too old for office. "Look at Churchill, look at De Gaulle, look at Stravinsky — they all did good jobs when they were a lot older than I am."

Chandler cited his record during his two terms in the governor's mansion at Frankfort. "Look up the record, and see who's qualified," he said.

He reiterated his pledges to repeal the 5 per cent tax on take-home food and to reorganize the government. "And," he said, "I can even get along without Louie's $500,000 airplane."

He also proposed a sweepstakes on the Kentucky Derby "that would get us a tow sack full of money."

Smith, who is from Princeton, told the crowd that "we have given both parties a chance, and both have failed."

The Princetonian pledged to fight for the removal of the 5 per cent sales tax, and proposed election reforms "so the little people can have a voice."

He charged the Democratic candidate (Ford) is controlled by special interests, citing J.R. Miller, the state Democratic chairman. "They may even change the name of our state to 'Millerland,'" he said, referring to Miller's Mississippi birthplace.

Smith pledged to clean up corruption and waste within the state government, and tear down the "private" sign at the entrance of the governor's mansion.

Ford placed the miseries of Kentuckians right at the feet of the Republican administration.

Tearing the Nunn-Emberton regime with that of President Nixon's, Ford told the crowd the woes citizens are experiencing from taxes, unemployment, high prices, and a recession are the direct products of those who want to continue in office.

"How does my opponent plan to correct the mistakes of his political godfather?" Ford asked.

On taxes, Ford was equally adamant, charging Emberton, as Nunn's chief assistant, with "taking a leading part in twisting arms of legislators and putting pressure on them to successfully pass Nunn's tax bill."

Ford then listed the Democratic tax record, saying "We Democrats in a general assembly have made a record of keeping our promises on taxes. We removed the sales tax from farm machinery in 1968. We removed the sales tax from drugs and health devices in 1970. We removed the sales tax from auto transfers when no money changed hands... we have cut taxes."

Emberton said his predecessors were "very entertaining but not very informative."

He suggested they all go on TV — Chandler on "What's My Line," Smith on "Mission Impossible" and Ford on "Let's Make a Deal."

(Mrs. Robert Blair, wife of the American Party candidate for lieutenant governor who spoke later on behalf of her husband, who is ill, remarked that Emberton should be on the TV program "Hollywood Squares".)

Emberton, like Chandler, pledged to remove a five per cent sales tax from food while at the same time maintaining state services.

He proposed a three-point plan for offsetting a loss of tax money on food:

(1) Shifting the tax burden from food to other necessities.

(2) Creating new jobs with new industries.

(3) Normal growth of economy which he estimated at $500 million over a four-year period.

He also pledged to keep Kentucky's agriculture strong and said he would oppose further taxes on cigarettes and tobacco.

Regarding welfare, Emberton said, "I believe anyone that needs work, who can work, should work."

Ford's running mate, House Speaker Julian Carroll, Paducah, called this a Democratic year — the year for putting Democrats in Frankfort.

"And the place to start is right here in the First District, the Gibraltar of Democracy," he added.

James Host, Emberton's running mate, reminded his listeners that this was his second appearance at Fancy Farm in as many years.

"Last year they told me not to come down here. But somehow I've got a feeling that an awful lot of folks are for us," he concluded.

Other candidates who spoke briefly were:

Thelma Stevall, Democrat, and Bill Emory, American Party, candidates for secretary of state.

Bob Miller, Republican candidate for state auditor.

Draft Lotteries To Be Held In Spite Of Federal Action

With fall classes beginning in some colleges and universities in late August, many young men born in the year 1952 have inquired when they will get their "lottery" number. It is quite understandable why these registrants are concerned about their future. Obviously no one can make plans with the uncertainty of involuntary military service for two years.

To allay some of the apprehension the Selective Service System has set Thursday, August 5 as the date for the lottery to determine the order in which young men born in 1952 will be inducted into the armed forces in 1972. The lottery was originally scheduled for July 1 but was postponed after House-Senate conferees deadlocked over legislation to extend the "draft" act two years.

At the time this column is being written the stalemate is over a Senate amendment (Mansfield). Basically, this amendment provides that it will be U. S. policy to pull out from Vietnam within nine months after enactment of the bill, provided American prisoners of war are released. When the stalemate will be broken is difficult to predict, as there are indications that Congress may not reach a compromise until the fall.

The authority to induct expired on June 30. However, all other activities of the System, such as registration, classification and pre-induction examinations are continuing. Failure of the House-Senate conferees to break the deadlock has forced delay in calling up 16,000 men requested by the Department of Defense for the Army in July and August.

Men who were deferred when the old law was in effect but were otherwise eligible, could still be inducted provided a decision to this effect was made by the President. The Secretary of Defense has said he is "not in favor of using such an unfair method to select the people for the July and August call."

A delay of three or four months in renewing the induction authority may give some indication whether the all-volunteer force can be achieved when one of the factors which has motivated many young men to enlist — the draft — has expired.

"You and the Draft" pledges to keep all Kentucky registrants and other interested persons well informed so they can plan for the future with some assurance that their plans will not be disrupted by the "draft."

Once again we remind all young men they must register within five days after reaching their 18th birthday. Selective Service registration can be accomplished at any local board. The address given at the time of registration determines the local board. If a young man registers away from home he should check the Registration Card carefully to determine that the address he has given will be under the board of his choice. The local board of jurisdiction cannot be changed after it has been established.

MERGE

The Truth Generally Lies Under the Surface

The true facts about anything are seldom pure and never simple. Facts often are deeply hidden, like the seven-eighths of an iceberg which always lie under water.

When your newspaper reporter says

"May I ask you a question or two?" he is really "diving" for facts. He hopes to bring to the light of day other related names, figures, or relationships which will tell his readers a fuller story.

Good newspapers, good newspapermen constantly dive, dig, and probe beneath the appearances of things to their deeper, often hidden meanings and connections.

There are all kinds of newspapers and all kinds of newspapermen. Nobody ever claimed they were all perfect. But one thing is certain:

THE FULTON COUNTY NEWS is engaged in digging out and publishing important facts about our public life.

That's the job of a free and unlicensed press.

Emberton To Bring Campaign To Fulton

Tom Emberton will bring his campaign for Governor of Kentucky to Fulton County on Wednesday, August 18.

The nominee for Governor will be accompanied by Ken Harper, candidate for Secretary of State, Bob Miller, candidate for State Auditor and Doug Moseley, candidate for Clerk of the Court of Appeals.

Emberton's CARE-o-van will arrive in Fulton at noon as part of a 32-day swing across Kentucky designed to take the Emberton Campaign "to the people."

Emberton emphasized that he planned to see as many people as possible on the tour and to listen to their views concerning Kentucky's problems and needed solutions.

He stressed his plan to discuss with Kentuckians the proposed removal of the 5 percent sales tax on food.

"I strongly believe that the people of our state should not be made to pay a tax on a necessity of life," Emberton said, "and I commit my leadership to seeing that the tax on groceries is removed."

Emberton, discussing the CARE-o-van, added that even with the extensive 4200-mile travel schedule during August and early September, he would continue to make regular campaign appearances at scheduled events apart from the tour. He said he plan to spend three days greeting voters at the Kentucky State Fair.

While Emberton's tour moves across Kentucky, Jim Host, candidate for Lt. Governor in the November General Election, and three other members of the Emberton-Host ticket, will be on a separate CARE-o-van through the same 116 counties.

Host said this will insure that members of the ticket visit every Kentucky County at least twice before mid-September.

Mrs. Emberton and Mrs. Host will begin their own tour of Kentucky on Tuesday, August 17 and will visit 72 Kentucky communities.

Deadline Nears For Entry In Woods Contest

Woodland owners in Kentucky and Southern Indiana have until midnight, Sunday, August 15, to submit entries in the annual Tom Wallace Farm Forestry Awards competition.

The contest, a public service program of The Courier-Journal and The Louisville Times to promote good woodlands management, seeks woodland owners with forestry management program from all over Kentucky and 31 Southern Indiana counties. The woodland owner with the most outstanding forestry management program will receive $500. The second place winner will receive $200. Also, the woodland owner showing the most improvement in his forestry program in the past year will receive a $200 prize. The improvement division runner-up will receive $100.

The four top prize winners will receive their awards at the annual Farm Awards Luncheon in Louisville next February.

Personalized wooden plaques will be awarded to the top entrant in each county from which five or more entries are submitted, and who, in the opinion of the judges, merits recognition for his forestry program.

Contest entry blanks and further information concerning the competition may be obtained from district and service foresters, soil conservationists, agriculture extension agents, and farm bureau offices.

Social Security 'Payroll' Large Monthly Totals

In Fulton County 2,784 social security beneficiaries could celebrate the signing of the Social Security Act August 14. On that date 36 years ago the bill was signed into law.

Fulton County's share of the approximately two-and-a-half billion dollars monthly benefits is $230,000. Over 26 million beneficiaries are covered under the program.

When the bill first went into effect, it protected only workers in commerce and industry. The original idea behind the social security law was to have workers save part of their income during their working years so they could be sure of an income when they retired.

Congress soon found that loss of income due to retirement was only one of the major insecurities facing Americans and their families. The law was then changed so that payments could be made to dependents of retired and deceased workers. Later it was amended to include protection for disabled workers and their families.

In 1965 Congress again amended the law to provide Medicare protection for persons 65 and over. Today, nine out of ten workers and their families can expect payments at retirement, death, or disability, and Medicare protection at 65.

Yvonne Hunter, Grew Up On Good Meals

The twin cities of Fulton, Ky., and South Fulton, Tenn., are preparing for their ninth annual International Banana Festival to be held Aug. 12-14. "Bunches" of banana activities are planned for the festive occasion, promoters maintain, including parades, a princess pageant, visiting Latin American dignitaries, a carnival and a giant banana pudding made to feed 10,000 people.

Perhaps the event most popular with Fultonians, however, is the banana bake-off, which places the area's best banana cooks and their dessert concoctions in competition for category and grand prizes.

Yvonne Hunter who captured the 1970 bake-off championship with her banana rum pie is not a typical cook, nor a typical Fultonian.

She said her mother would never let her or her five sisters in the kitchen. "Mom always told us girls it would be more trouble to clean up after us."

"But we grew up on good meals," she added. "You know how some people just snack. Well, we always had french fries and chicken for breakfast, and three good full meals."

Mrs. Hunter attributes her cooking ability to this heritage of good eating. "I was used to good food and therefore I had the common sense of cooking."

I think if you have always had good food you can pretty well make things come out right," Mrs. Hunter doesn't use a recipe for her cooking. She has "brainstorms." "First, you have to start out with good ingredients," she said. "Put together good things and nearly always, you will have a good dish. Just use your common sense."

Her secret in banana cookery lies in the way she handles them. "I never cut them," she stated. "I really cannot understand why one would want to slice them. As soon as you do, they turn brown. I always leave them whole and that way, the dish is much prettier."

The 1970 Banana Bake-Off was the first baking contest Mrs. Hunter had ever entered. "I couldn't believe I won. Actually the reason—I think—was because I used rum. No one had ever done that before."

Even though Mrs. Hunter is graced with an outstanding cooking ability, she does not spend a lot of her time in the kitchen. "There is simply not enough time to do everything that I want to do," Mrs. Hunter said. "I have too many hobbies."

Fultonians have been preparing for their festival, including the annual banana bake-off, for weeks in advance. Mrs. Hunter plans on entering the contest again but, "I don't know what I'll concoct," she worries. "I guess I'll have to have another brainstorm...or maybe add a little more rum this time."

"I couldn't turn the stove on when I got married," Mrs. Hunter laughed. "I felt so sorry for myself. When we were first married I couldn't even boil water."

The bakeoff competition is a regular feature at the International Banana Festival at Fulton. The ninth annual affair will be held Aug. 12-14. (Chuck Holbert Photo)

Although Mrs. Hunter does not use recipes, she took time to write down two of her more famous "concoctions" for interested banana chefs.

Betty's Banter

by Betty Higgins

Hola! Me llama Betty Higgins y el gusto es mio. Probably there isn't a more fitting way to introduce myself since my arrival has come in the midst of Banana Festival happenings.

In order to acquaint you with your new resident, here are a few true, if not interesting, facts about myself:

I'm from the same little bend in the road that claims the Fancy Farm picnic. If you happened to miss Saturday's big event, you missed a lot of good barbecue, back-slapping, bingo, and "politticking." But from what I hear and have seen, you've got your own good thing going here in the way of the International Banana Festival.

Murray State University sheltered, taught, untaught, amazed, dismayed, and finally after four years, disowned me last June. However, I did manage to bring away a degree in English and Journalism.

IMPRESSIONS

Arriving in the middle of festival events has proved quite exciting. The word "international" caught my attention immediately. There must be some hard workers here to manage such an awesome affair.

Sunday night I went down to Festival headquarters to help greet the Amigos, and got a taste of the chaos and confusion that accompanies anything of such magnitude. The excitement the kids and "parents" generated was infectious.

Hopefully, I'll be meeting many of you in the coming weeks. The people I've already met have been so friendly and cordial. No doubt, you live up to the first word in the Festival title—neighborly.

Registration books are now open for voters wishing to register. Those not already registered or who wish to change voting precincts must do so by Sept. 7.

Drum Major, Flag Bearer Auditions Planned At MSU

MURRAY, Ky. —Audition dates for a new unit of eight girl flag-bearers and a drum major with the "Marching Thoroughbred Band" at Murray State University have been set for the annual band camp Aug. 25-28.

Roger Reichmuth, marching band director, has announced that flag-bearer tryouts will be held Aug. 25, and auditions for drum major will be conducted Aug. 28.

Majorities were chosen from auditions last spring.

Both members and prospective members of the Murray State marching band attend the camp held each year prior to registration for the fall semester at the university.

Reichmuth explained that the unit of flag-bearers, a new addition to the band for the 1971-72 year, will perform in precision drill with the band and in spotlighted special routines of its own.

He said auditions for the unit will be based on marching ability, personality projection and beauty. Special uniforms have been designed for the flag-bearers to complement the new uniforms ordered for the band, Reichmuth added.

Auditions for drum major, a position open each fall, will consist of conducting, baton and whistle (or hand) signals, vocal commands, and leadership as demonstrated during the band camp schedule, according to the director.

He urged anyone interested in tryouts for flag-bearer or drum major, along with any student musicians who would like to join the band, to contact him at the university for additional information.

Fall semester registration at Murray State begins Aug. 30.

Bank Post Goes To Mr. Phelps

David Ward Phelps, ice cream sales manager for Turner Dairies and member of the Obion County Fair board of directors, has been named assistant manager of the South Fulton branch of Farmers Exchange Bank, now under construction.

The appointment of Mr. Phelps, a well-known Obion County citizen, was made Thursday by F. G. 'Moe' Cavin, Farmers Exchange president.

Mr. Phelps began in the dairy business with Pure Milk Company in 1943 and continued employment in that field with Turner's Dairy, serving as ice cream sales manager in an area that stretched from Sikeston, Mo., to Paducah, Ky., to Huntington, Tenn. He is also secretary of Burnette Tractor, Inc.

A native of Hickman County, Mr. Phelps is the son of the late Auzie Phelps and the stepson of Mrs. Zuaneta Phelps of the Beeleron community.

Mr. Phelps graduated from Beeleron High School and attended the Detroit Business Institute.

In addition to being a fair director, he is a member of the First Baptist Church and the Fulton Rotary Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Phelps, the former Martha Floyd, live on Route 5, Fulton, in Obion County. They have three children—Greg, a student at UT Martin; Paul, a senior at South Fulton High School; and Marda Kay, a student at South Fulton Elementary.

In discussing the new bank, Mr. Cavin said, "We are real happy to get this facility under way to serve the entire trade area."

The structure will be located on Broadway between Liberty and Sears. Mr. Cavin said he hoped the building would be ready for business by December 1.

The new bank will be of contemporary design, featuring bronze glass cast in black metal and white concrete frames. It will be fully carpeted.

A manager has not been named for the new facility at present. In addition to Mr. Phelps and the

State Gets $1.1 Million For Program

The U.S. Department of Labor has awarded a grant of $1.1 million to Kentucky for a program to train unemployed and underemployed people for jobs in state government.

The 21-month project, "Impact '73," calls for the training of 311 people for jobs, and the upgrading of skills for 205 people for employment in state government.

The grant is the largest made in the southern states for the Atlanta region of the Labor Department and is the first direct funding Kentucky has received for upgrading employment, and subsequently providing jobs.

William Moore, deputy commissioner of personnel for the state, said the project will "put as much emphasis as possible" on helping returning veterans.
